Have a Nice Day By Julie Halpern

Anna Bloom has just come home from a three-week stay in a mental hospital. She feels...okay. It's time to get back to some sort of normal life, whatever that means. She has to go back to school, where teachers and friends are dying to know what happened to her, but are too afraid to ask. And Anna is dying to know what's going on back at the hospital with her crush, Justin, but is too afraid to ask. Meanwhile, Anna's parents aren't getting along, and she wonders if she's the cause of her family's troubles.

Editorial Review

From School Library Journal

Gr 9 Up—This sequel to Get Well Soon (Feiwel & Friends, 2007) begins minutes after the first book ends. Anna Bloom has just returned home after spending three weeks at a mental hospital for depression. The first book detailed her time in the hospital and was written as letters from Anna to her best friend, Tracy. This book is narrated by Anna. She tells what happens as she returns to school and discusses the family dynamics as her parents' marriage falls apart. Readers finally get to meet Tracy as well as Anna's other school friends. Anna is nervous about how everyone will treat her now that she has a history. Her return to school ends up being a nonevent. She has lost weight during her hospitalization, and as the story unfolds, her worry and panic attacks begin to subside. She really does heal and learn to accept herself and the flaws of her family members and friends. This book stands alone as the many references to Anna's stay in the psych ward and the people she met there are well explained. The teen is honest about her feelings and uses strong and raw language to express herself. Her voice can be annoying with her constant complaining about her condition and the way her parents handle her problems and theirs, so this novel is not for everyone. However, there will be an audience of teen girls who clamor for stories about characters with issues like Anna's.—Elizabeth Kahn, Patrick F. In this sequel to Get Well Soon (2007), Anna Bloom is newly released from her three-week stint at Lakeland (“Lake Shit”), a Chicago mental-health facility where she was treated for depression and panic attacks. As if reentry isn’t difficult enough, her passive mom and absentee, disconnected dad are separating. Despite a tough home situation (and other sucky things like IBS and group therapy), Anna is starting to feel “normal,” as she solidifies friendships and views artsy boy Tucker as a potential love interest. Anna’s sarcastic voice is sharp as ever, and those who followed her through treatment will be anxious—and pleased—to see where she is at today. Grades 8-12. --Ann Kelley

Barbara Kelley:

As a scholar exactly feel bored to help reading. If their teacher questioned them to go to the library or even make summary for some book, they are complained. Just minor students that has reading's soul or real their leisure activity. They just do what the instructor want, like asked to go to the library. They go to there but nothing reading critically. Any students feel that reading through is not important, boring in addition to can't see colorful photos on there. Yeah, it is to get complicated. Book is very important for yourself. As we know that on this period, many ways to get whatever we would like. Likewise word says, ways to reach Chinese's country. Therefore this Have a Nice Day can make you really feel more interested to read.
